PREPARED BY Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

PIRE LAKE, MINN.—I declare every season that I will not get up so early when we come on these fishing trips, but somehow it is contagious for the little woman who claims the first share in my affections and all my pocketbook. After living the almost life of a recluse for fifteen years in Chicago, she has changed from a sick, suffering woman to one who now enters into woman to one who now enters into camp life with a spirit and gets up at 3 o'clock in the morning to go bass

"About two years ago, after suffering for nearly two years from rheumatic gout, being able to walk only with great discomfort, and having tried various remedies, including mineral waters, without relief, I saw by an advertisement in a Chicago paper that a man had been relieved of this distressing complaint, after long suffering, by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I then decided to make a trial of this medicine, and took it regularly for eight months, and am pleased to state that it has effected a complete cure. I have since had no return of the disease."—Mrs. R. Irving Dodge, 110 West 125th st., New York.

"One year ago I was taken ill with camp life with a spirit and gets up at 3 o'clock in the morning to go bass lishing.

We began our fishing promptly, and my wife's lancewood was harrly in her hands when something gave a big jerk at the line and began to run out lively. This ungentlemanly behavior was quickly resented by a sharp strike from the butt of the rod; woman-like, she did not see fit to give up snything without an attempt to defend her vested rights. This brought up M. Dolomieu to the surface fighting mad, shaking the line and splashing in great shape the little woman.

I carefully dropped the tip of her rod and gathered in the slack of her line. I cautioned her to handle him quickly but carefully, M. Dolomieu objected being handled and beaten by a woman; so tried all the tricks of her tribe and sax. She made a grand run for the long lake

She made a grand run for the long take grass in which our best was anchored, but was quickly snubbed; the hand that the fish and reached for the landing not, but 'he bass came to the surface with a bounce; out of the water it flung isself, and again came up and stosel on its tail and shook itself vigorously. It was clear mad right through and said so.

"Take him," came from amidships. The little woman was getting nervous Puss, the dog, was excited, but she wanted never gave tongue. She wanted to jump into the water and help her mistress to bring in the big fish, but I quieted her with "Down charge, Puss!" That was sufficient. The bass meantine was making the water ity. The strain was too much for the little time was making the water fly. The strain was too much for the little woman; she left her reel and began to pull in with one hand. This gave the bass a slack line. Instantly it flung it flung itself out of the water and came down, slap! The line came back again to the boat with a spring; but not any

This was too bad; to fight a big fish so bravely and then to lose him; her face turned red, then white.

"Oh, why didn't you take my rod and land him?"

"Oh, why didn't you take my red and land him?"
"Because," I replied, "you will know better another time, now that you have lost a big one. Give me your hook; there are others around here."
I again baited with a piece of fish and she cast out. "Something is going for for my bait!" Swish! and she was fighting a rock bass of a pound and a quarter. She was cool and careful this time, steering the fish to my end of the boat. I slipped the landing net under it and threw it into the boat, and put another batt on. While I was killing this rocky I heard the buzz of the reel. Looking up I found the wife had hooked another good fish. I caught up the landing net and determined not to say a word, but quietly let her fight it out.

The bass rushed and tore around a circle whose centre was the tip of the During the summer we clean up and clear out in order to get ready for the Fall and Winter trade. So.

if you wish to buy a Piano circle whose centre was the tip of the little wife's rod; but she held him there little wife's rod; but she held him there until he began to show signs of weakening—indeed, he came to the surface and tried to intimidate her. Then she quickly tightened the line on him, reducing him to a tractable mood, and finally drew him within reach of my net. I had him in the boat almost before the feminine angler knew it, and took the hook from his mouth so that he lay splashing in the boat-bottom.

"Oh, what a beauty! Is he a genuine bronze back? A real small mouth?"
